Cash Course for Couples empowers young to middle-aged adults with financial know-how through mentoring and education. Cash Course for Couples services cover cash flow, budgeting, financial management, and literacy.

They provide comprehensive analysis and guided instructions with a proven plan for success. They aim to equip young couples with clear pathways for establishing fiscal best practices, preventing future hardship and alleviating both relational and financial strains.

By targeting this life stage, couples can lay solid foundations for future success. Through interactive workshops in small group settings, CCFC brings together a small group of couples to develop detailed plans and practical applications for fiscal responsibility.

Discussions include merging and structuring accounts, budgeting, maximizing tax structures, crisis prevention, fostering positive fiscal behaviour and setting financial goals. Their goal is to instill smart money habits, prevent financial crises, and foster transparent communication for couples in managing personal finances.
